Upchurch songs beef

I share my life with all of you. The second thing you came to redneck rave were family, I stand next to that. Unfortunately, last Sunday was a very tragic event. SXS is going 1mph rolled down the hill and introduces 2 people who were not wearing their harnesses. The room was quite big and comfortable. It was a complete accident. Although no one could do anything it weighs extremely my heart. Monday I called Adam’s mother to express my condolences and let her know that her family is in my prayers and if there is anything I can do, just let me know. She said please just tell everyone to always wear their seatbelts. Now, yesterday, when I was taking the generator back to Louisville, I decided to stop by the mall and get some oakleys. I got some non-standard, so it took a minute, so we decided to go to the food court. When we came back, there was a man and a child in the store. The person said you had a minute, I said yes, thinking nothing of it. He said I just want to thank you for calling my mother last night. I instantly got goosebks. It was Adam’s brother. I didn’t know what else to say or do so I hugged him as long as I could. We sat there and talked and were in disbelief that our paths had just crossed. I gave him my number and told him to call me for anything. Later that night, he sent me time for the funeral and asked if I was free, I said yes, I’d be there. Today, when I arrived at the funeral, I saw how many people really love Adam. Even though it was a tough time for everyone out there you could tell he was right up there tailings with all his friends and family. I was instantly greeted by Alex, Adams’s brother, and he took me to pay homage to his Mother. Hugging her, I couldn’t help but think about my mom and what pain she would be going through if she had just lost her son. When we spoke, she told me that he had died doing what he loved. He was always on the hunt, fishing and riding with his pals. When I hugged her again, she told me, please make sure I tell everyone to wear their seatbelts and I said yes, ma’am I promise I will. This is one of the hardest posts I’ve ever had to write, and I’ve thought long and hard whether I should. but I think his mom’s message should be heard by as many people as possible. We were all guilty of riding without a harness or seatbelt, tucking it behind us, or just not putting it on because we don’t think we need to. It only takes a second. Nothing I say or do can replace my son, I can only pray that we all accept this terrible accident and learn from it. My heart goes out to Adams’ family and friends. Today hug all your loved ones, call that friend, with him you can make a fuss and tell them you love them. And above all… let your children know how much they mean to you, say you love them, and keep them as tight as you can. in peace Adam Jones.
